

Evening Star

When printing the templates, ensure that paper size is set to A4, and scale to 100%

December

This is sometimes called Sawtooth Star. The first reference to it appears to be in the Farm and Fireside Magazine in 1884. A few years later it was published as Evening Star by The Ladies Art Company. In 1935 it was called Variable Star by Carrie Hall.

Cutting instructions

Print out the templates from the PDF file.

Fabric 1 Cut out 8 of template B.

Fabric 2 Cut out 8 of template B.

Fabric 3 Cut out 8 of template B.

Cut out 4 of template A. (called square 4)

Assembly Instructions

1. Take 1 of template B in Fabric 1 and 1 of template B in Fabric 3 and join together to make a square. (called square 1). Do this 4 times.
2. Take 1 of template B in Fabric 2 and 1 of template B in Fabric 3 and join together to make a square. (called square 2). Do this 4 times.
3. Take 1 of template B in Fabric 1 and 1 of template B in Fabric 2 and join together to make a square. (called square 3). Do this 4 times.
4. We must now join squares together to make rows. Take a square 1 and a square 4 and join together. Next join together a square 3 and a square 4. Now join these two together to get strip 1. Consult diagram below.

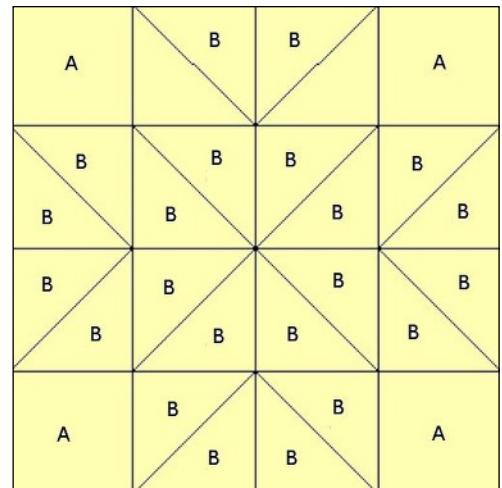

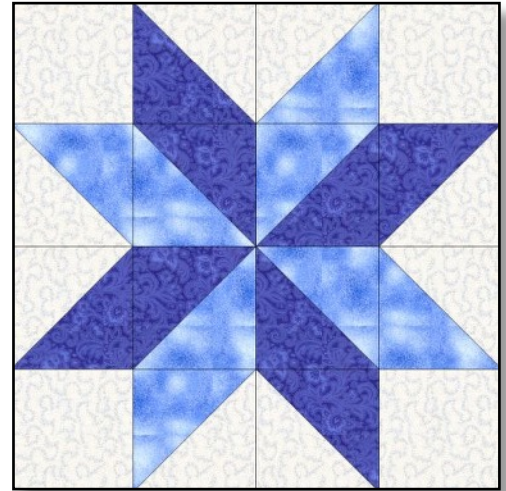

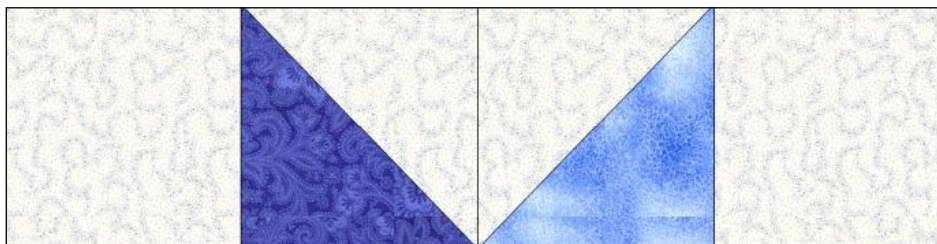

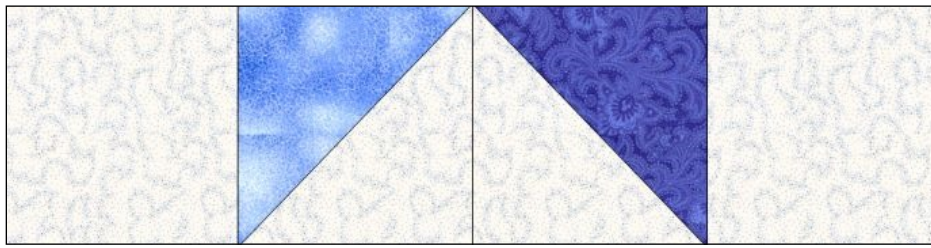

Diagram 1

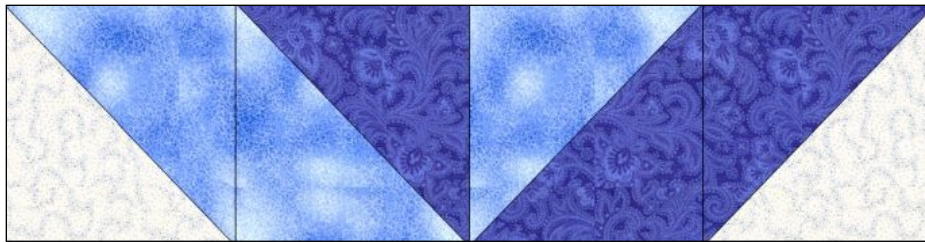

5. Repeat stage 4 to get strip 4 consulting diagram below for position.

6. Take a square 2 and join to a square 3 and join together.

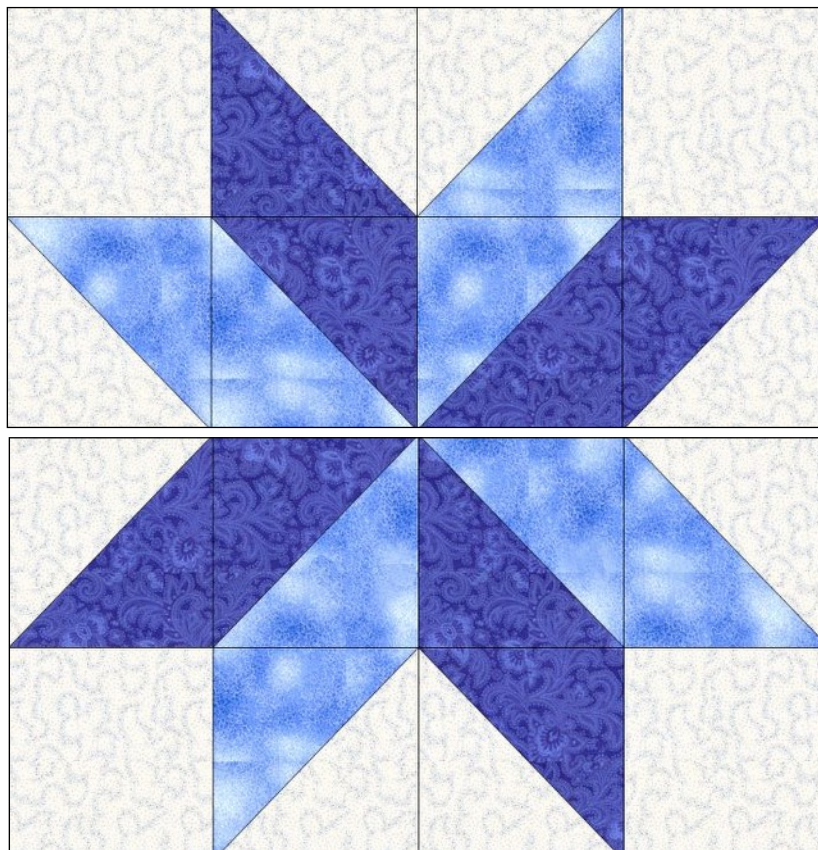

Now join a square 3 to a square 1. Join these together as shown below to make strip 2.

7. Repeat stage 6 to make strip 3 consulting diagram below for position.

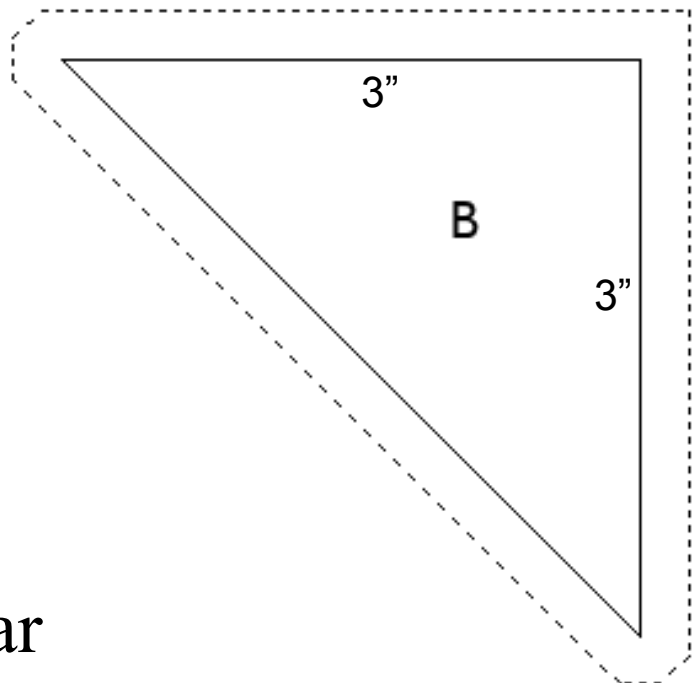

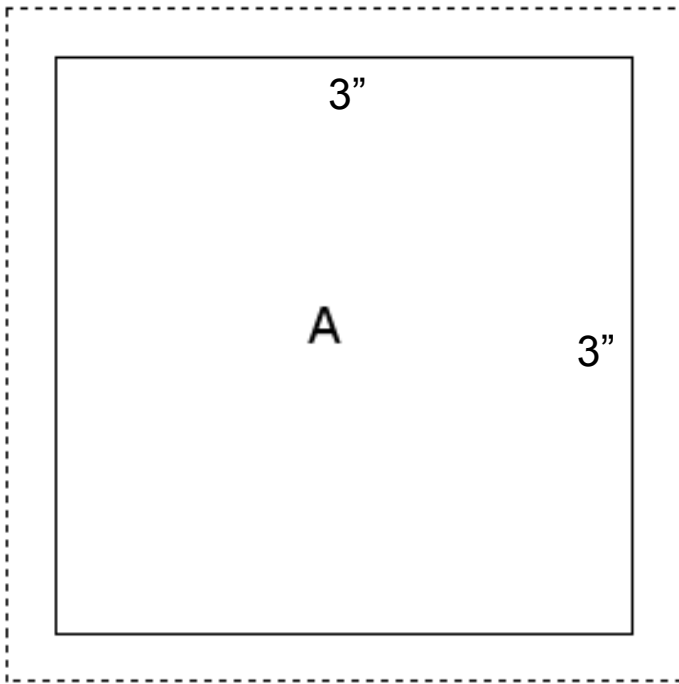

8. Next join strip 1 and strip 2 together. Join strip 3 and strip 4 together as shown.

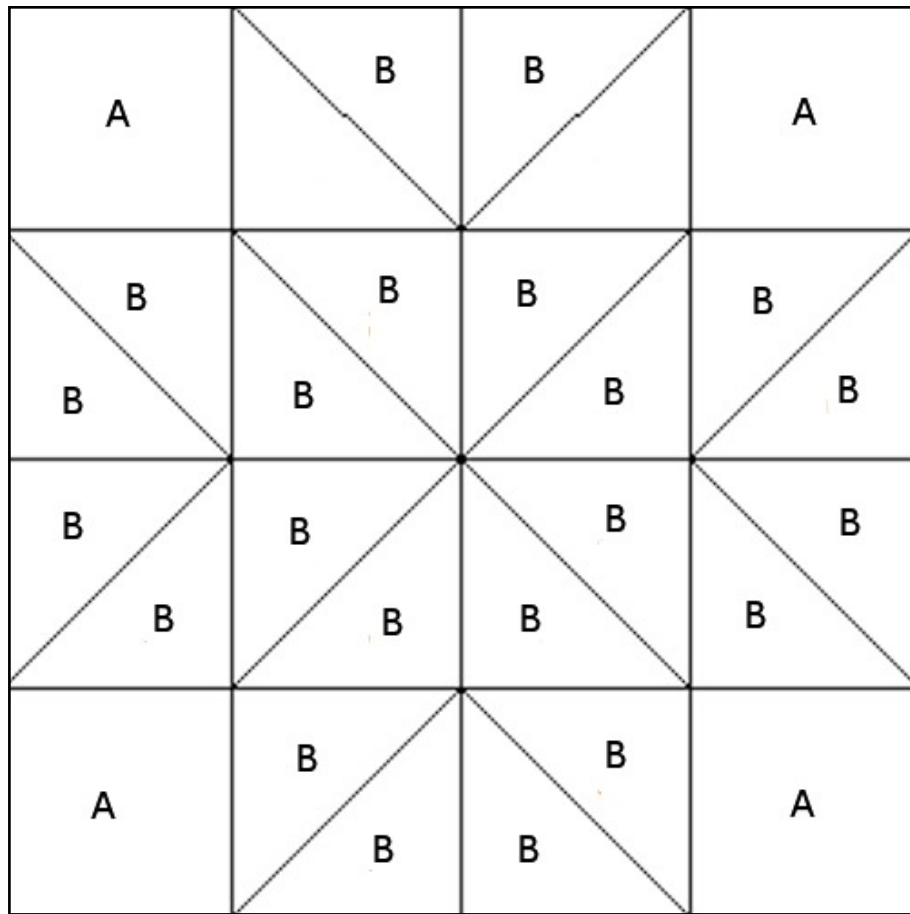

9. Now join the two pieces together as shown to make a  $12\frac{1}{2}$  inch square.

This template should be printed at 100% scale,
with paper size set to A4

Evening Star
Template

Evening Star Template